Hotels to Change Hands.

The many warm friends of John C. Breneman, who for the past two years has been the landlord of the Grand Central Hotel in this town, will be pleased to learn that he has succeeded in leasing the Henderson House in Bradford one of the leading hotels in that city, and will take possession of the same next April He has made a host of friends during his residence in Smethport, and while we all regret his departure from among us, are rejoiced that his prospects in his new field are of the most encouraging character. No man is better known in Bradford than Mr. Breneman, who was formerly a resisdent of the city. His genial disposition has won for him many friends among the traveling men, and thus he has established for himself a reputation as a hotel man that will result beneficially to him when he opens up his Bradford house. Those residents of the county who have made their home with him when here when they go to Bradford, will look for John, and we predict for him a successful career. Here's to you, Colonel!

Republican County Committee Meeting.

The Republican county committee met in the parlors of the St James Hotel, at Bradford, at 2 p. m on Thursday of last week. It was decided to hold the Republican primaries on Saturday, April 11th, and the convention on the Tuesday following, April 14th. Section 8 of the new rules came up for discussion. The trouble with this clause is that the voter should erase every name on the ballot whom he did not wish to vote for. This was in direct opposition to the Baker ballot law, and hence a change was desired to avoid confusion. It was finally decided to allow the people to vote upon the question at the February election. The committeeman from each voting precinct will act as judge, and he is empowered to select two men to act as inspectors Chairman Dempsey appointed a committee of three to arrange for the change, as follows: E. R Sherman, Bradford; M B Greer, Smethport, and J. J. McCarry, Annin

Obituary.

Died at her residence, in Augusta, Ga., on Thursday, January 5d, 1896, Jenete N. McCoy, wife of William E. McCoy, in the forty-fourth year of her age.

The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron D. Hamlin, of Smethport. She was married August 5, 1873, to N. V. Redfield, of the Cincinnati Commercial (known to the newspaper world as "N. V. R.") who died at Washington, D C., in 1881. By this marriage she had a daughter and two sons, who have spent much of their lives at Smethport, where they will continue to make their homes with their grandparents She was again married to W. E. McCoy, of Augusta, Ga., where she remained until her death.

The hand of the fell destroyer came, but he did not find the sufferer unprepared, but by a life that had been fully devoted to the service of the loving Master, she was looking not with terror and anguish, for the approach of the angel of death, but with a calm serenity which knows that all is well when the hour of dissolution shall come: As she in faith looked across the dividing river which separates us from the eternal city and saw the boatman approaching to bear her spirit to that land from whence no traveler returns, her features wore a calm and resigned look, which spoke of an assured hope that a loving Savior was waiting to welcome her to the land of eternal rest, where freed from the trials and afflictions of this life, she awaits the coming of those she held most dear in this world, where they will be forever united.

Another Death.

Barbara Dehn, wife of Geo. Herzog died at her home near Farmer's Valley, on February 1st. The deceased was born at Ritenhousen, Germany, January 26, 1826 She came to this country in 1848. She was the mother of thirteen children, her aged husband, two daughters and seven sons surviving her. Her daughters are Mrs. John F. Hazel and Mrs Lena Speer, of Pittsburg, Pa. Her sons are Christian, John, Conrad, George, Michael, Alonzo and Lawrence, all living in this neighborhood. The funeral took place at her home and the remains were taken to Clermont for burial on Tuesday. She has gone to her reward, after a useful and worthy life.

Teachers' Association.

Over 100 teachers of the county and half as many from Cameron, Potter and Cattaraugus counties will attend the coming County Teachers' Association to be held at Port Allegany Feb., 20—22 Every district in the county should be represented by its best teachers and no doubt will be as they are the only teachers who attend such meetings. A rich program has been arranged and no doubt it will attract a large number of teachers.

Mild, but always effective, Ayer's Pills are indispensable as a family medicine, both for children and adults.

Fire at Mt. Jewett.

There was a big fire at Mt. Jewett last week Thursday night. The loss would not have been over $500, but for some difficulty in making connections with the hydrants. The Herald reports the losses as follows:

A. G. Phillips, building and machinery, $1200, insurance $400; E. L. Raymond, laundry equipment, $600 to $800, insurance one half; W. D. Rock, who has a lease of the buildings and machinery, will lose perhaps $200, aside from the disadvantage of being thrown out of a good trade which he has worked hard to establish. There was about $500 worth of clothing in the building at the time, the loss of which will fall on the patrons of the laundry.

Patriotic Entertainment.

The flag presentation held at the school house at East Smethport Saturday evening was a complete success in every way. The children under the direction of Miss Adda Burch showed the result of careful training and sung and spoke their different parts to perfection. A feature of the entertainment was the solo by Charles McCoy, who although quite young, possesses a remarkably sweet voice. The selections by the Smethport High School double quartette were well rendered.

At the close of the exercises by the scholars Comrade Mayo, representing the G A. R., presented the school with a beautiful flag. Comrade Choate responded in behalf of the school directors in a few well chosen words.

Died.

C. W. Peck died at his residence, on Franklin street, on Friday night of last week, after an illness of a little over a week, of typhoid pneumonia, aged 39 years. The deceased has been engaged as a letterer in the marble works of W. H. Prentiss for about three years. The funeral services were held at the late home of the deceased on Sunday afternoon, Rev. G. W. Halliwell, pastor of the Baptist church, performing the services. The remains were interred at Rose Hill cemetery. Among the relatives from out of town were Mr. Sparks and wife, of West Clarksville, N. Y.; Mr. Fairchild, of Prentiss Vale; S. R. Franklin and wife and Geo Peck and two sons, Foster and Richard, all of Bradford.

—The band boys of Crosby give a dance on Feb. 14th. Everybody go and have a good time.

FARMERS VALLEY.

Mrs. Conrad Herzog died at her home on Cole Creek on Saturday morning last. She leaves a husband and a large family of grown-up sons and daughters to mourn their loss. But our loss is her eternal gain. Interment took place at Clermont on Tuesday.

The wood bee for Rev. Bennett, which was held at the parsonage on Friday afternoon of last week was a success. The result was that enough wood was cut to last for a long time.

The revival meetings held at the Cole Creek school house by Rev. Bennett are quite well attended and much good is being derived from them.

Misses Mertie and Allie Stull, who have been suffering with pneumonia for the past two weeks, we are glad to say are now able to be around again.

Mr. Lopus, of Waterford, Erie county, is stopping with his daughter, Mrs. M. T. Caskey, of this place.

Messrs. Fred Hewitt and Kale Ferris visited Ormsby on Monday of last week.

My Country 'tis of Thee.....

Pursued by a Demon.

How many suicides, think you, reader, have been committed by persons driven distraught and hunted to their doom by the demon of chronic ill health? Countless. For instance, we know, do we not, that hypochondriasis is a monomania—a sort of minor madness produced by chronic dyspepsia? Again, insomnia, or sleeplessness, often a result of the same cause, culminates in a derangement of the reasoning faculties. It is, therefore, of momentous consequence to prevent the arrival of disease at its chronic phase, when it daily and nightly scourges the sufferer to a dangerously uncertain goal. No medicine known to science, as a means of arresting the maladies to which it is adapted, exists equal to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Among these complaints are chronic indigestion and insomnia, kidney and rheumatic ailments, constipation and liver trouble. Appetite is improved by the Bitters, the blood fertilized, and bodily substance and vigor increased by it.

WE take pleasure in placing before our readers this week the name of John R. Chadwick as a candidate for county commissioner on the Republican ticket. Although a little past three score and ten, he is remarkably hale and hearty. Mr. Chadwick was prothonotary and recorder of McKean county from 1860 to 1869. In 1873 he was appointed commissioners' clerk, having served in the same position prior to 1860. Probably there is no man in this section who has a more thorough knowledge of public affairs in our county than Mr. Chadwick. Should he be so fortunate as to recieve the nomination he would make an exceptionally good commissioner, owing to his ripe experience.

JOHN J. MCCAREY, of Annin township, announces himself as a candidate for county commissioner, subject to the will of the Republicans of McKean Co. Mr. McCarey was born and raised in Annin township, having worked on a farm and lumbered ever since he became a man. He has been thrice elected supervisor of the township, which clearly shows the estimation in which he is held at home. For some time he has held the position of county committeeman from his township. He has quite an extensive acquaintence in the county, and if he should be one of the fortunate ones, there is no question but that he would make a competent commissioner.

JUST before going to press Corwin Wilder, of Foster township, telegraphed us announcing his name as a candidate for county commissioner on the Republican ticket. Mr. Wilder has been a resident of this county for about 20 years and is one of the most progressive business men of his section. Mr. Wilder is a positive man, one who will stand up for what he honestly thinks is right. He is well qualified to fill the position he aspires to fill.

Unlike most proprietary medicines, the formulæ of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla and other preparations are cheerfully sent to any physician who applies for them. Hence the special favor accorded these well-known standard remedies by the World's Fair commissioners.

Amended Rule 8.

The sub-committee, appointed at the recent meeting of the Republican county committee, to draft a proposed change in the new rules so that the rules should confirm with the Baker ballot law, met at Smethport Monday and organized by the election of E. R. Sherman chairman and Murray B. Greer secretary.

The committee considered the proposed change and formulated an amendment to Rule 8, which will be submitted to the Republican voters of the county at the February primaries. The committee instructed Secretary Greer to cause to be printed 5000 circulars containing Rule 8 in its present form and also the rule as amended. The secretary was also instructed to procure the printing of 5000 ballots and to distribute the same among the county committeemen in all the election districts of the county. Rule 8 as it stands and as amended follows:

RULE 8.

The voter at such caucus after determining his choice of candidate for the several offices shall cancel or mark out all the names of all the other candidates printed on said tickets so that the same may appear clear and conspicuous to the election board, and no ballots not prepared in the manner aforesaid, and not cancelled as herein provided shall be considered or counted by the officers conducting said caucus.

RULE 8 AS AMENDED.

The voter at such caucus after determining his choice of candidates for the several offices shall mark a cross (x) at the right of the name he desires to vote for, so as to conform with the Baker ballot law, so that the same shall appear clear and conspicuous to the election board, and no ballots not prepared in the manner aforesaid and not marked as herein provided shall be considered or counted by the officers conducting said caucus.

(Signed) E. R. SHERMAN, Chairman,
M. B. GREER, Secretary,
J. J. MCCAREY.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

GOOD NEWS FOR CUBANS

Cheering Advices by Mail From the Island.

SPLIT IN THE SPANISH RANKS.

Weyler, the New Captain General, Will Find a Hotbed of Discontent—Situation In Havana Rapidly Growing Worse—Cubans Feel Confident.

NEW YORK, Feb 4 —The news brought to this city by the Havana steamer is cheering for the friends of Cuban liberty. The letters of the secret agents of the revolutionary party in Havana spoke of a split among the Spanish parties on the island, of jealousies among the military; of starvation in the city, and of a crisis in the commercial situation. F G. Pierra translated one of the most important letters. Parts of it were as follows

"There is a very decided division between the Conservative and Reformist parties of the Spaniards and they are pouring hot shot into each other through the columns of the press. As a proof of this I send you the papers of the Conservative party in which the editorials are written in a particularly bitter strain against their former allies The Reformist party were in favor of the mild policy of Campos, while the Conservatives believe in fire and bloodshed The situation is a most critical one and no one recognizes this fact better than the Spaniards.

"The excitement in Havana is increased by the fact that the government does not allow any news to be printed except that given out from the official bureau. Spaniards, as well as Cubans, know that the better part of the news given out is fabricated."

The correspondent then goes on to detail several engagements, in one of which a whole troop of 300 Spaniards were annihilated The news given out, however, was of a tremendous Spanish victory.

"The price of provisions are rising very rapidly, and destitution in the city of Havana is increasing rapidly A great many families are now dependent for subsistence on what the government gives them—a small amount weekly. There have been times within the past few days when there have not been provisions of any kind to be bought at the public market E en those having money to spend have been forced to go hungry Nothing has been received from the surrounding country for a long time

"Another circumstance which aggravates matters is the fact, well known to everybody on the island, that there is very great discontent known to exist among the military friends of General Pando, whom they think, was slighted by the government at Madrid in appointing General Weyler to the position formerly filled by General Campos It is well known that this part of the Spanish element are far from being willing to co-operate with those who are favorable to Weyler and that they will do anything they may safely do to make him fail On the whole everything looks very bad for the Spanish. Pay no attention to the cable dispatches in regard to the movements of Generals Gomez and Maceo. I know for a certainty that they have been operating with entire freedom and that they have remained in Havana and Pinar del Rio because they are not in the least afraid of being worsted by the Spaniards"

In another letter it is stated that the commercial situation in Havana is critical Business is paralyzed and large commercial houses are dismissing all of their employes Business men are anxious that the trouble should be ended one way or the other without loss of time

NEWS FROM HAVANA.

General Marin Reported to Have Defeated Gomez.

HAVANA, Feb 4 —General Marin has had an engagement with a body of the insurgents which he reports to be the main force under Gomez, and which was put to flight with a loss of 20 killed The entire absence of any details as to the number of insurgents in the body attacked leaves some ground for doubt as to whether it was, in truth, Gomez's immediate following

General Marin had information that Gomez had encamped at the plantation of Luz and prepared for a combined attack by all the columns under his immediate command Two columns were ordered to take the advance, together with seven squadrons under Colonel Ruiz Upon coming up with the insurgent vanguard the Spanish cavalry made an impetuous charge, passing over the enemy's second line and falling upon the main force, which was stationed near the plantation of Luz. The insurgents were put to immediate flight, leaving behind them 20 killed, 11 with machetes in their hands There was apparently no successful pursuit of the insurgents, as they succeeded in carrying off their wounded, the number of which is stated to be unknown.

The band led by Pedro Diaz, numbering 1,000, is reported as making active movements about Guira Melena, Gabriel and Salud, which are between the Batabano military line and Artemisa.

Further news is awaited with lively interest, as it is believed it will be proved in a very short time whether the effort of Maceo and Gomez to form a junction will prove successful or not.

They report that several bushwhackers were lynched before they

Ex-Assemblyman Lord Dead.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 4.—Hon. George D. Lord, a former wellknown citizen of Rochester, and its representative in the assembly of the state, has died at Kensico, Westchester county. Mr. Lord was a son of the late Senator Jarvis Lord of Pittsford, and was born in Ontario county about 50 years ago. He was in early life a contractor and built the Rochester water works system which brought Hemlock lake water to Rochester. In 1870 he was elected to the assembly as a Democrat and in 1871 re-elected. He leaves two sons and two daughters.

Lynched Man's Innocence Discovered.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb 4.—Developments have come to light here which show that Lee Sellers, who was lynched here 10 years ago for the supposed murder of Edward Maine and the robbery of $1,100 from him, was an innocent man. Lizzie Hickman, on her deathbed, confessed that Ike Wright, a notorious character, was the real murderer and he is now being pursued by officers.

TO THE REPUBLICAN ELECTORS OF PENNSYLVANIA:

The Republicans of Pennsylvania, by their duly authorized representatives, will meet in State Convention, Thursday, April 23, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m., in the Opera House, city of Harrisburg, for the purpose of nominating two candidates for Representatives at Large in Congress and thirty-two candidates for Presidential Electors, selecting eight delegates at large to the Republican National convention, and transacting such other business as may be presented. The representation to which each Legislative District is entitled is indicated in the annexed schedule. By order of state committee.

Attest: M. S. QUAY, Chairman.

JESSE B. REX,
W. E. ANDREWS, Secretaries

At the State Convention held in the city of Harrisburg May 23, 1894, the following resolution was adopted:

"That representation in State conventions shall be based upon the vote cast at the Presidential or Gubernatorial election immediately preceding, one delegate being allowed to each Legislative district for every two thousand Republican votes, and an additional delegate for a fraction exceeding one thousand votes, each district to have at least one delegate."

Keating, Feby. 6, 1896.

LAST Sunday morning fire destroyed several buildings at the corner of Broad and Chestnut streets Philadelphia involving a loss of one and a half million dollars. Among the buildings destroyed was that of the Baptist Publication Society with all its rare works, which cannot be replaced. The loss on this structure alone is over half a million.

IN this issue of the MINER will be found the name of W. A. Young as a candidate for county commissioner. Mr. Young is at present one of the county auditors, and in that capacity has gained considerable knowledge of county affairs. He was born in Keating township, this county, and has always resided here, during which time he has gathered around him a host of friends who will rally to his side in the present campaign, which makes him a very strong candidate.

IN the proper place will be found the announcement of J. F. Davis for the office of Sheriff. He has been deputy sheriff for a little over two two years, during which time, by strict attention to his duties, he has proven himself qualified in every way for the office which he now seeks. He has made hosts of friends all over the county by his obliging manner and his readiness to perform any service connected with his office, no matter what kind of weather or how unpleasant the duty might be. His kind treatment of persons against whom he has had writs, &c., has also won him many warm friends. We believe that Mr. Davis is a strong candidate and, should he have opposition, the man who beats him will have to be a good one.

THE name of the Hon. C. W. Stone appears at the head of our announcement list as a candidate for renomination in the 27th congressional district. Mr. Stone has been one of the ablest representatives this district ever had. A fluent and ready speaker, a fine parlimentarian, his usefulness on the floor of the house of Congress was quickly recognized, and now as chairman of one of the most important committees of the house (coinage,) his influence will be felt more than ever. As far as heard from Mr. Stone will have no opposition in the district. His ability is fully acknowledged by every Republican living within the four counties of which the district is composed. At the last Congressional election Mr. Stone had a majority close up to 7,000. The four counties can easily make his majority 10,000 at the coming election. Let every Republican work for this figure and success will crown our efforts and thus show to the state at large how highly we appreciatiate our present member.

GEORGE W. MITCHELL, our efficient prothonotary and recorder, announces himself as a candidate for reomination on the Republican ticket to the office he now so ably fills. Anyone who has had any business transaction in the prothonotary's and recorder's offices in the last two years or more cannot have failed to note how promptly every duty was discharged, which clearly demonstrates that the Republicans of McKean county made no mistake in 1893 when they placed Mr. Mitchell in charge of that office. They will make no mistake if they renominate and elect him to the office for another term. In the discharge of his duties as clerk of the several courts Mr. Mitchell has developed a proficiency equal to any person who ever held that responsible position before him. Mr. Mitchell has been a resident of the county for over twenty years and is well and favorably known. Possessed of a genial disposition, generous to a fault, showing no favoritism to anyone, but using all alike, makes him especially fitted for the position he occupies.

THE name of Col. Lucius Rogers appears in the proper place as a candidate for the assembly. To the readers of the MINER Mr. Rogers needs no introduction, his paper having been a weekly visitor at their homes for thirty years, and consequently the ties that bind them together in friendship are of the closest. His name is a household word in every home in McKean county, having lived among them for over a quarter of a century, Mr Rogers has always been in the fore front, first as a soldier, then as an able editor of a newspaper. His trenchant pen always made itself felt. For years he has ably filled positions of public trust, both county and state. Now in the vigor of a ripe manhood, he comes before the Republicans of McKean county and asks them to make him one of their representatives in the State legislature, a position which he is well-qualified to fill.

THE name of Charles Oberg, of Mt. Jewett, appears in the proper place, in which he announces himself as a candidate for county commissioner on the Republican ticket. He is now in the prime of life, rugged and healthy, and well qualified to withstand the difficulties that always arise in the county commissioners' office to try one's patience. Among his countrymen he is an acknowledged leader in whom they have implicit confidence. Mr. Oberg served as post master at Mt. Jewett for a long time and gave good satisfaction to all the patrons of the office. If Mr. Oberg should be one of the fortunate ones at the coming primaries in April McKean county would be certain of securing an able official to look after her interests for three years to come.

R. A. DEMPSEY announces in this issue of the MINER his candidacy for member of assembly. Mr. Dempsey is an old resident of the county and a veteran of the war of the rebellion. He has always been a prominent man in the Republican party in this county. He is now mayor of Bradford and was elected for the same office in 1886, which shows the esteem in which he is held by his fellow citizens in Bradford. Should he be successful in his aspirations, he would undoubtedly be a creditable representative.

FRANK R. FOSTER announces himself as a candidate for renomination to the office of county commissioner. Mr. Foster is too well known to need any words of commendation from us. Having been before the people in his official capacity for over two years, they have a thorough knowledge of his fitness for the position. Mr. Foster has been a resident of McKean county for a number of years, most of the time engaged in the drug business, during which time he has formed a large acquaintance.

CHAPTER XXX.

"What!" cries Dawson, catching his daughter in his arms and hugging her to his breast, when the first shock of surprise was past. "My own sweet Moll, come hither to warm her old father's heart?"

"And my own," says she tenderly, "which I fear hath grown a little wanting in love for ye since I have been mated. But, though my dear Dick draws so deeply from my well of affection, there is still somewhere down here" (clapping her hand upon her heart), "a source that first sprang for you and can never dry."

"Aye, and 'tis a proof," says he, "your coming here where we may speak and act without restraint, though it be but for five minutes."

"Five minutes!" cries she, springing up with her natural vivacity. "Why, I'll not leave you before the morning, unless you weary of me." And then, with infinite relish and sly humor, she told of her device for leaving the court without suspicion.

I do confess I was at first greatly alarmed for the safe issue of this escapade, but she assuring me 'twas a dirty night, and she had passed no one on the road, I felt a little reassured. To be sure, thinks I, Mr. Godwin, by some accident, may return, but finding her gone and hearing Captain Evans keeps me to my house he must conclude she has come hither and think no harm of her for that neither, seeing we are old friends and sobered with years, for 'tis the most natural thing in the world that, feeling lonely and dejected for the loss of her husband, she should seek such harmless diversion as may be had in our society.

However, for the sake of appearances, I thought it would be wise to get this provision of ham and birds out, for fear of misadventure, and also I took instant precaution to turn the key in my street door. Being but two men, and neither of us overnice in the formalities, I had set a cheese, a loaf and a bottle betwixt us on the bare table of my office room, for each to serve himself as he would, but I now proposed that, having a lady in our company, we should pay more regard to the decencies by going up stairs to my parlor, and there laying a tablecloth and napkins for our repast.

"Aye, certainly!" cries Moll, who had grown mighty fastidious in these particulars since she had been mistress of Hurst Court. "This dirty table would spoil the best appetite in the world."

So I carried a fagot and some apple logs up stairs and soon had a brave fire leaping up the chimney, by which time Moll and her father, with abundant mirth, had set forth our victuals on a clean white cloth, and to each of us a clean plate, knife and fork, most proper. Then, all things being to our hand, we sat down and made a most hearty meal of Mrs. Butterby's good cheer, and all three of us as merry as grigs, with not a shadow of misgiving.

There had seemed something piteous to me in that appeal of Moll's that she might be herself for this night, and indeed I marveled now how she could have so trained her natural disposition to an artificial manner and could no longer wonder at the look of fatigue and weariness in her face on her return from London.

For the old reckless, careless, dare-devil spirit was still alive in her, as I could plainly see now that she abandoned herself entirely to the free sway of impulse. The old twinkle of mirth and mischief was in her eyes, she was no longer a fine lady, but a merry vagabond again, and when she laughed 'twas with her hands clasping her sides, her head thrown back and all her white teeth gleaming in the light.

"Now," says I, when at length our meal was finished, "I will clear the table."

"Hoop!" cries she, catching up the corners of the tablecloth and flinging them over the fragments. "'Tis done. Let us draw round the fire and tell old tales. Here's a pipe, dear dad. I love the smell of tobacco, and you," to me, "do fetch me a pipkin that I may brew a good drink to keep our tongues going."

About the time this drink was brewed Simon, leading Mr. Godwin by a circuitous way, came through the garden to the back of the house, where was a door, which I had never opened for lack of a key to fit the lock. This key was now in Simon's hand, and putting it with infinite care into the hole he softly turned the wards. Then, with the like precaution, he lifts the latch and gently thrusts the door open, listening at every inch to catch the sounds within. At length 'tis opened wide. Then, turning his face to Mr. Godwin, who waits behind, sick with mingled shame and creeping dread, he beckons him to follow.

Above Dawson was singing at the top of his voice a sea song he had learned of a mariner at the inn he frequented at Greenwich, with a troll at the end, taken up by Moll and me, and to hear his wife's voice bearing part in this rude song made Mr. Godwin's heart to sink within him. Under cover of this noise Simon mounted the stairs without hesitation, Mr. Godwin following at his heels in a kind of sick bewilderment. 'Twas dark up there, and Simon, stretching forth his hands to know if Mr. Godwin was by, touched his hand, which was deadly cold and quivering, for here at the door he was seized with a sweating faintness, which so sapped his vigor that he was forced to hold by the wall to save himself from falling.

"Art thee ready?" asks Simon, but he can get no answer, for Mr. Godwin's energies, quickened by a word from within like a jaded beast by the sting of a whip, is straining his ears to catch what is passing within. And what hears he? The song is ended, and Dawson cries:

Simon pushes wide open the door.

"You han't lost your old knack of catching a tune, Moll. Come hither, wench, and sit upon my knee, for I do love ye more than ever. Give me a buss, chuck. This fine husband of thine shall not have all thy sweetness to himself."

At this moment Simon, having lifted the latch under his thumb, pushes wide open the door, and there through the thick cloud of tobacco smoke Mr. Godwin sees the table in disorder, the white cloth flung back over the remnants of our repast and stained with a patch of liquor from an overturned mug, a smutty pipkin set upon the board beside a dish of tobacco and a broken pipe—me sitting o' one side the hearth heavy and drowsy with too much good cheer, and on t'other side his young wife, sitting on Dawson's knee, with one arm about his neck, and he in his uncouth seaman's garb, with a pipe in one hand, the other about Moll's waist, a-kissing her yielded cheek. With a cry of fury, like any wild beast, he springs forward and clutches at a knife that lies ready to his hand upon the board, and this cry is answered with a shriek from Moll as she starts to her feet.

And Moll, flinging herself betwixt the knife and Dawson, with fear for his life, and yet with some dignity in her voice and gesture, answers swiftly:

"This drunken villain is my father."

CHAPTER XXXI.

"Stand aside, Moll," cries Dawson, stepping to the fore and facing Mr. Godwin. "This is my crime, and I will answer for it with my blood. Here is my breast" (tearing open his jerkin). "Strike, for I alone have done you wrong, this child of mine being but an instrument to my purpose."

Mr. Godwin's hand fell by his side, and the knife slipped from his fingers.

"Speak," says he thickly, after a moment of horrible silence, broken only by the sound of the knife striking the floor. "If this is your daughter—if she has lied to me—what, in God's name, is the truth? Who are you, I ask?"

"John Dawson, a player," answers he, seeing the time is past for lying.

Mr. Godwin makes no response, but turns his eyes upon Moll, who stands before him with bowed head and clasped hands, wrung to her innermost fiber with shame, remorse and awful dread, and for a terrible space I heard nothing but the deep, painful breathing of this poor, overwrought man.

"You are my wife," says he at length. "Follow me." And with that he turns about and goes from the room. Then [illegible] out a look at us, without a word, her face ghastly pale and drawn with agony, with faltering steps obeys, catching at table and chair as she passes for support.

Dawson made a step forward, as if he would have overtaken her, but I withheld him, shaking my head, and himself seeing 'twas in vain he dropped into a chair and spreading his arms upon the table hid his face in them with a groan of despair.

Moll totters down the dark stairs and finds her husband standing in the doorway, his figure revealed against the patch of gray light beyond, for the moon was risen, though veiled by a thick pall of cloud. He sees, as she comes to his side, that she has neither cloak nor hood to protect her from the winter wind, and in silence he takes off his own cloak and lays it on her shoulder. At this act of mercy a ray of hope animates Moll's numbed soul, and she catches at her husband's hand to press it to her lips, yet can find never a word to express her gratitude. But his hand is cold as ice, and he draws it away from her firmly, with obvious repugnance. There was no love in this little act. 'Twas but the outcome of that chivalry in gentlemen which doth exact lenience even to an enemy.

So he goes on his way, she following like a whipped dog at his heels, till they reach the court gates, and, these being fast locked, on a little farther to the wicket gate. And there, as Mr. Godwin is about to enter, there confronts him Peter, that sturdy Puritan hireling of old Simon's.

"Thee canst not enter here, friend," says he in his canting voice as he sets his foot against the gate.

"Know you who I am?" asks Mr. Godwin.

"Yea, friend, and I know who thy woman is also. I am bidden by friend Simon, the true and faithful steward of Mistress Godwin in Barbary, to defend her house and lands against robbers and evildoers of every kind, and without respect of their degree, and with the Lord's help," adds he, showing a stout cudgel, "that will I do, friend."

"'Tis true, fellow," returns Mr. Godwin. "I have no right to enter here."

And then, turning about, he stands irresolute, as not knowing whither he shall go to find shelter for his wife. For very shame he does not take her to the village inn to be questioned by gaping servants and landlord, who, ere long, must catch the flying news of her shameful condition and overthrow. A faint light in the lattice of Anne Fitch's cottage catches his eye, and he crosses to her door, still humbly followed by poor Moll. There he finds the thumbpiece gone from the latch, to him a well known sign that Mother Fitch has gone out a-nursing. So, pulling the hidden string he wots of, he lifts the latch within, and the door opens to his hand. A rush is burning in a cup of oil upon the table, casting a feeble glimmer round the empty room. He closes the door when Moll has entered, sets a chair before the hearth and rakes the embers together to give her warmth.

"Forgive me, oh, forgive me!" cries Moll, casting herself at his feet as he turns and clasping his knees to her stricken heart.

"Forgive you!" says he bitterly. "Forgive you for dragging me down to the level of rogues and thieves, for making me party to this vile conspiracy of plunder! A conspiracy that, if it bring me not beneath the lash of justice, must blast my name and fame forever. You know not what you ask. As well might you bid me take you back to finish the night in drunken riot with those others of your gang."

"Oh, no, not now—not now!" cries Moll in agony. "Do but say that one day long hence you will forgive me. Give me that hope, for I cannot live without it."

"That hope's my fear!" says he. "I have known men who, by mere contact with depravity, have so dulled their sense of shame that they could make light of sins that once appalled them. Who knows but that one day I may forgive you, chat easily upon this villainy, maybe regret I went no further in it?"

"O God, forbid that shall be of my doing!" cries Moll, springing to her feet. "Broken as I am, I'll not accept forgiveness on such terms. Think you I'm like those plague stricken wretches who, of wanton wickedness, ran from their beds to infect the clean with their foul ill? Not I!"

"I spoke in heat," says Mr. Godwin quickly. "I repent even now what I said."

"Am I so steeped in infamy," continues she, "that I am past all cure? Think," adds she piteously, "I am not 18 yet. I was but a child a year ago, with no more judgment of right and wrong than a savage creature. Until I loved you I think I scarcely knew the meaning of conscience. The knowledge came when I yearned to keep no secret from you. I do remember the first struggle to do right. 'Twas on the little bridge, and there I balanced awhile 'twixt cheating you and robbing myself. And then, for fear you would not marry me, I dared not own the truth. Oh, had I thought you'd only keep me for your mistress I'd have told you I was not your cousin. Little as this is, there's surely hope in't. Is it more impossible that you, a strong man, should lift me than that I, a weak girl—no more than that—should drag you down?"

"I did not weigh my words."

"Yes, they were true," says she. "'Tis bred in my body—part of my nature, this spirit of evil—and 'twill exist as long as I. For, even now, I do feel that I would do this wickedness again, and worse, to win you once more."

"My poor wife," says he, touched with pity, and holding forth his arms she goes to them and lays her cheek against his breast, and there stands crying very silently with mingled thoughts—now of the room she had prepared with such delight against his return, of her little table in the corner, with the chiney image atop, and other trifles with which she had dreamed to give him pleasure—all lost! No more would she sit by his side there watching, with wonder and pride, the growth of beauty 'neath his dexterous hand, and then she feels that 'tis compassion, not love, that hath opened his arms to her; that she hath killed his respect for her, and with it his love. And so, stifling the sobs that rise in her throat, she weeps on till her tears, trickling from her cheek, fall upon his hand.

LITERARY NOTES.

In McClure's Magazine for February, Mr. Harry Perry Robinson, editor of "The Railway Age," will describe, section by section, bringing in all the dramatic incidents, the recent speed-run from Chicago to Buffalo—the fastest railroad run ever made in all the world. Mr. Robinson was one of the official time-keepers, and, being an experienced writer on railroad topics, can tell the story as no one else possibly could. The paper will be illustrated with pictures of the locomotives that drew the train, portraits of the engineers who operated them, and snap-shots taken from the train when it was making eighty miles an hour. Mr. Murat Halstead will have an article giving the secret history of the nomination and administration of President Garfield and embodying important conversations with Garfield never before published, one of them held only a few hours before his assassination. A series of portraits of Garfield will accompany the article.

Harper's Magazine for February opens with an attractive article on Baltimore, by Stephen Bonsal, one of the best known of that city's younger sons. Many illustrations have been for Mr. Bonsal's article by Harry Fenn and from photographs. Casper W Whitney's description of his notable journey to the Barren Grounds of British North America grows more interesting as it advances. Theodore Roosevelt furnishes a vivid account of General St. Clair's ill-starred expedition against the Miami Indians a century ago. R. F. Zogbaum has supplied satisfactory illustrations for the text. An interesting reminder that the Behring Sea question should not be lost sight of in the discussion of the Venezuelan boundary is furnished in a paper, by Henry Loomis Nelson, on "The Passing of the Fur-Seal," in the February Harper's.

In a most invitingly dainty cover, seasonably typifying midwinter—its frost and snow—the February Ladies' Home Journal, resplendent with illustrations by the best artists and attractively varied in its literary features is unique. James Whitcomb Riley sings in his sweetest, purest strain of "Little Maid-O-Dreams," a fanciful little poem, the spirit of which Sonora Emmet Sherwood has winsomely presented in a full-page picture. Ex-President Harrison's paper, "This Country of Ours" serves, discusses the "Presidential Office," and gives General Harrison's views upon the eligibility of the President for re-election. Edward W. Bok editorially discusses women and their work. Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D. D., addresses himself forcefully to young men, under the vigorous caption of "The Stuff that Makes Young Manhood." All these unite in making the February Ladies' Home Journal attractive entertaining, instructive—an ideal midwinter magazine for every fireside and home.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1.00 per bottle at A. W. Colegrove's and A. B. Armstrong & Co.'s drug stores.

T. F. Anthony, ex-Postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by A. B. Armstrong, Druggist, Smethport, Pa.

Miscellaneous Remedies.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in its results." Trial bottles free at A. W. Colegrove's and A. B. Armstrong & Co.'s drug stores. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

RHEUMATISM CURED IN A DAY.—"Mystic Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. LETTERS COST $1 APIECE.

California Miners Lined Up For the Mail, and Pisces Were Worth $300.

A well known patent attorney in this city, who was in California in the early mining days, apropos the publication in The Post of the cost of carrying mails on the Yukon, makes some interesting statements about similar service on the Pacific coast in 1849-50:

"We had to pay $1 for every letter sent or received," he states, "besides the government postage. We were in the mines and had to send a messenger, with an order for the postmaster to deliver to him our mail at Sacramento, a distance of from 75 to 100 miles, according to the location of the camps. Parties made a business of carrying the mail and had regular routes around through the mining camps.

"At that time mail went by way of the isthmus, there being but one steamer every three weeks. As a result, at San Francisco and at Sacramento, the two main offices and supply points for the state, there would be a large crowd waiting every time a mail arrived. They finally adopted a rule among themselves requiring all to form in line and take their turn, and hundreds stood or laid in line day and night to keep their places, sometimes several days before they could be served, the line being formed days before the steamer arrived. Resident speculators would take position in the line, and when they had advanced near the door would sell their place to others from the mines, who were waiting, frequently getting from $100 to $300.

"Such a thing can hardly be believed by those who have never had any such experience, but in the fall of 1849 an ox team driver got $10 per day and board. Sundays being counted the same as other days, while carpenters got from an ounce ($16) to an ounce and a half per day, everything else costing in proportion, and hence the mail carriers for the mines could better afford to pay for the position in line than to wait on expense and lose the time, they sometimes being kept waiting for a week before they could get all their mail for the several camps.

"One of the curious sights was the sale of the New York papers. As soon as the steamer arrived a man or boy with a lot of papers would rush ashore, mount a box and just as fast as he could hand out the papers and make change dispose of them at $1 each. Of course in time all this changed, but communication with the States was then so slow and the time required so great to get us isolated as we were from home and friends and the whole outside world, it seemed almost an eternity."—Exchange.

A Misfit.

"Yes," he answered, as he seemed to huddle himself in a heap. "I've done some odd things in my time. I've jumped from a train running at a speed of 48 miles an hour, and I can't say as I want to repeat the experiment."

"What was the occasion?"

"Three years ago. I did it for a bet of 20 shillings. The bet was that I daren't walk out on the platform and take the jump without picking out my ground. As it happened the ground was pretty clear, but £1,000,000 wouldn't get me to try it again."

"How did you come out?"

"Well, it's hard to describe the sensation. As I sprang from the step I seemed to fly. I sailed along in the air until my wings grew tired, and then I dropped down to see the country. Sometimes I beat the professionals all hollow, and again I made a mess of it. It was my intention to skip all the mud puddles and avoid all the stumps, but you can't always have your own way in this world. By and by I came up with a bang in a ditch corner, and waited for a first class hospital to visit me."

"Much hurt?"

"Might have been worse. Broke an arm, two ribs and had over 100 cuts and bruises, and it was seven weeks before I could walk a yard."

"But you won the 20 shillings?"

"Y-e-s, but there is where I always grow sad. The stakeholder forwarded it to me from his town in the shape of a coffin, and it didn't fit my length by seven inches. I had to sell the confounded thing as a misfit at half price."—Strand Magazine.

Falling From the Sun to the Earth.

The philosophers have figured out some queer problems since the time of Horatio, but none of them is more curious than that relating to the amount of time it would take for an object to fall from the sun or moon to our earth. It has been decided, after an immense amount of figuring, that if a bowlder weighing a ton should fall from the sun it would take it 99 years, 9 months, 7 days and 3 hours to reach the earth. The same bowlder could make the trip from the moon to the earth in 4½ days. —St. Louis Republic.

The Ætolian League.

The Ætolian league was a confederacy of Greek states formed B. C. 323. An annual assembly was held in the autumn at Thermum, and this conference was called the Panætolicon. The league was dissolved on the conquest of the Ætolian states by the Romans, B. C. 189. The original purpose of the league was to free Greece from the rule of the Macedonian kings.

Woodard & Shanklin's Sale Opened.

LEXINGTON, Feb. 4.—Woodard & Shanklin's annual winter sale of trotters began here with a large attendance and fair prices. Best sales: Monbars, black horse, records, pacing, 2:16¾, trotting, 2:11¾, by Eagle Bird, Lady Maud, to R. P. Fox & Co., Richmond, Ky., $1,500. Jupe, b. c., 2 years, by Allie Wilkes, dam Annie Patchen, J. N. Snell, Boston, $600.

Many cases of so called heart disease, are only cases of acid fermentation in the stomach. The irritation from the acid hinders the action of the heart, through the pneumogastric nerve, and very often the excessive restraining power of this peculiarly acting nerve, becomes a very serious matter; the heart makes the greatest effort to do its work, but there is a shortness of breath which cannot be made up for, and the feeling throughout the chest is very distressing. Sometimes this acid arises and causes an acrid smarting in the throat: at other times the burning is up and down the chest.

Another stomach trouble is that form of dyspepsia which gives pain after eating. Persons with this disease seem to have but a scant measure of nerve strength; when food is being digested, the stomach needs the concentration of all of the nerve and brain force, and if reading or close thought is attempted soon after eating, the stomach commences that intolerable aching which dyspeptics dread so much, when, the only immediate relief appears to be to stop the mental activity and get up and move around. In such cases there is evidently for the time being, too little nerve power to divide between the stomach and the brain; each one alone needs it all to enable it to perform its labor.

There are two properties possessed by Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic, which constitute it a cure for all of the above derangements. One, is its power of purifying and sweetening the stomach and stopping the formation of gas and acid, the other is the giving of increased nerve action and strength. Soon, with better digestion and better nutrition, there is a general renewal of life and health. The mind of a business man, under its use, soon become clearer and more active, thoughts come easier and are more clearly expressed, the memory is stronger, business plans and ventures are arranged in a better manner and are more patiently and successfully carried out, and details are attended to better because of the increase strength of both mind and muscle.

Women having the care of a household on their minds, find Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic to be a great blessing; it gives better digestion, better nutrition, more strength, cures that feeling of weariness in the morning, that anxiety of mind, that fear that something is going wrong or that something bad is going to happen, cures dizziness, shortness of breath, pressure through the chest, belching of wind, rumbling in the bowels, heartburn, and all forms of dyspepsia that come from weakness.

Mrs. Eben Pierce, of Bonp, Potter Co Pa., writes: "I can truthfully say that I owe my life to your stomach and nerve tonic. I was troubled with my stomach for over a year and tried everything I could hear of, but did not get any benefit. I was nearly in despair, for although I had only four in my family I could not begin to do the work for them; an anxious friend wrote me to try Dr Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic, and I did. I did not expect to ever get any better, but was greatly relieved on taking the first dose and now after taking only one bottle of your remedy I can do my work and my stomach does not hurt me only when I do very heavy work. I shall continue its use until I am entirely cured, for I am perfectly satisfied that it will cure all such stomach trouble. I thank you dear Doctor, a thousand times over for putting before the public such a wonderful remedy for human suffering."

Mrs. Albert Harman, of 2305 Fifth Ave., Altoona, Pa., writes, "Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic has done me a power of good; that burning after meals has left me; I have always been so nervous that I would take nervous spells so bad sometimes that I would have to send for the doctor, but have not had one since I commenced using your stomach and nerve tonic."

H. C. Beatty, Barkeyville, Pa., says: "For years I had a severe pain in my stomach after meals; one bottle of Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic cured me; I think, permanently."

J. C. Fulton, of Burgettstown, Pa., writes, "I have been afflicted with the rheumatism and was laid up in bed a good part of the time, my stomach was in a bad condition and would not retain food. I began to use Dr. Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic it not only helped my stomach but relieved me of the rheumatism and also increased my weight wonderfully."

A TRUE STORY.

In a cabin at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains lived a beautiful girl with her aged father. They were very poor, and as their little "Mountain Home" was soon to be sold under a mortgage, it was with joy that the old father welcomed as a suitor for his daughter's hand an old and wealthy friend of his youth, who, having come to pay him a visit, had fallen in love with the charming girl. She, having lived so long in poverty, was quite carried away by the tales told her by the rich old friend regarding the wealth and splendor of his city home, and he offered her land, gold and diamonds if she would become his bride. She had a dark-eyed mountain lover, who was too poor to offer her anything but roses.

WHICH DID SHE CHOOSE?

The question is answered in the (3) verse song and chorus entitled:

"DIAMONDS OR ROSES,"

Words and Music by C. H. ADDISON.

This is one of the most catchy, brilliant and fascinating songs ever published, and is now being sung with great success in all the large cities. Price 40 cents.

THE LADIES OF THE MACCABEES INSTALL OFFICERS—AN INTERESTING OCCASION.

It has been some time since we have asked for a small space in your valuable paper and wishing to let our sister hives know we are still prospering, we would like to tell them of a meeting we had Wednesday evening, Jan. 29, called for the purpose of installing the officers for the new year.

Alice Adams, senior past commander, of Crosby Hive No. 57, had charge of the ceremonies and did credit to herself and the hive in discharging her duties.

After the installation was over the lady bees served a lunch to about forty, invited lady guests, who all declared the meeting to be a decided success in every respect and we hope that some of those friends will see for themselves that there must be something more than mere play in our gatherings and that they will set themselves to thinking on this great question of fraternity and protection and join our ranks before it is indeed to late.
